Dear Dr Ahmad,

Thank you so much for your revised manuscript.
According to the 2nd review process, I decided it was a "minor revision".
Please find the review below. I hope to hear from you.

By the way, did you get my information about the 1st reviewer's comment?

Comment;

I guess that this manuscript is not a scientific paper but socio-cultural studies aiming to conserve the sea turtles. It can imply conservation practice for stakeholders in Indonesia. Even so, I think that you should add more concrete description to methods. Furthermore, you cannot say a significant decrease in the sea turtle population without statistical analysis. The other comments are included in the manuscript. I guess that this manuscript is not a scientific paper but socio-cultural studies aiming to conserve the sea turtles. Dear Ahmad Jupri et al.,

I hope that you are all well.

Please find attached a PDF preview of your article for Journal of Marine and Island Cultures v9n2.

Would you kindly review the attached article and let us know by reply e-mail if there are any errors/omissions or changes, by Tuesday 29 December. If there are any changes, please specify the page/s and include existing text to be removed, and text to be inserted/replaced.

Please note: pagination/page numbering is not final (as some figures may be resized, and headings adjusted). Similarly, in the event that we need to change the order of articles, DOIs have not yet been registered so they are not yet active (but are not likely to change).

Best regards

Alex (on behalf of the JMIC editorial team)
